

Dixie Lee

Dixie Lee is fondly known as “The Original Burnt-out Honky Tonk Queen”, a cross between long time comedienne Phyllis Diller and singer Dolly Parton. This colourful character is bigger than life on more than one fronts! Her infamous banter about hit country songs, and aging bodies are trite yet endearing and her strolls into the audience make room for entertaining improvisation which Kelita loves and does so well.

Kelita’s Insight:

“Dixie Lee was created out of necessity in my last year of theatre performance at university when I wrote and staged a one woman show. Needing another character to round off the program, I figured writing songs for a country singer would be easy so I bought a wig at a garage sale and put on my best southern drawl. Little did I know that Dixie Lee would pave the way for my future career as a serious country recording artist, something I never truly set out to do.

Dixie Lee traveled onto some large stages, including overseas on two UN Peace Keeping Tours for the troops. She was included as a separate performer on the concert poster and at the after show reception people would be asking for her, even while directly speaking to me. What a riot.’

Booking Dixie Lee:

Dixie Lee is the kind of southern girl you want at your party, large scale event or conference. A dynamic character with broad appeal that will have large audiences falling in love with her endearing quirks and idiosyncrasies. Dixie Lee is a great contrast and great balance to some of the more eccentric characters Kelita can bring to your event.
